RACE COURSE SPEEDWAY, N. Y. ay 10 .- With the sinking sun flashing

The parade started at 2 o'clock from One Hundred and Tenth street and Seventh avenue. The route was up the evenue to One Hundred and Fifty-third street, across the viaduct to the Speed way and up the stretch to Dyckman street and return past the club-house at One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street, where a grand stand was erected.

The Spedway sidewalks were lined ten leep with sightseers. None was disappointed. The review was the most suc essful and grandest ever held on the On the grand stand itself were many of the foremost horsemen of the country. Society sent a full quota, and sevral of the leaders of the fashionabl set ent approval by their presence. The galaxy of notables in the social and equine world did not disturb the parading thoroughbreds in the least, owever. With arched necks, shining

May 10.—With the sinking sun flashing brightly from their silver trappings, 250 of the proudest thoroughbreds in the world paraded majestically on the Speedway this afternoon, while fully 30,000 of their lovers cheered approbation. It was the third annual "Speedway Day" under the auspices of the Road Drivers' Association, and the sight was one for kings.

The American horse as a creature of beauty has long been acknowledged the leader of the world. To-day's parade of the cream of American road horses showed conclusively that their prestige is in no danger of loss.

EXPOSITION PARK, PITTSBURG. Pa., May 10 .- Owing to the fact that the circus was doing business on the ad-joining lot, play was called to-day order to give the circus-goers a chance to see the big show furnished by the Champions and Trolley-Dodgers. It was he last game of the series, and both teams were hot after the victory.

There was a raw wind sweeping over the park that made things very uncom-fortable for the players ,as well as the frosty aspect of the weather.

The talk to-day was all about the record-tumbling feat of Clarence Wright, which put into the shade anything done by the clowns in the circus across the way. The Cleveland people say that Wright made monkeys of the Brooklyn one magnates and fooled them into paying the expenses of a trip to Pittsburg for a little sport.
